South County Connector is needed for better access

In response to the Post-Dispatch's editorial "Disconnect" (July 23) regarding the lack of a need for the South County Connector, I am sure tha... Read more

What St. Louis County really needs is a connector from Interstate 64 to Laclede Station Road. By the time the Clayton rush-hour traffic on Hanley Road reaches Laclede Station Road, it has disbursed significantly, and most of the remaining drivers are heading for either Watson Road or Gravois Road for the remainder of their trip to Arnold, Fenton or South County. This connector would only increase the driving time and distance for these particular drivers.
